FOREWORD

The purpose of the Consumer Energy Atlas is to provide, in convenient referenced form, a central source of information to consumers on key contacts concerned with energy in the United States. This is the first edition. We invite your comments on the value and accuracy of this format in helping citizens and citizen groups participate more effectively in energy policies and programs.

Energy consumers need information appropriate to local climates and characteristics--best provided by state and local governments. The Department of Energy recognizes the authority of state and local governments to manage energy programs on their own. Therefore, emphasis has been given to government organizations on both the national and state level that influence, formulate, or administer policies affecting energy production, distribution, and use, or that provide information of interest to consumers and non-specialists. In addition, hundreds of non-government energy-related membership organizations, industry trade associations, and energy publications are included.

Most of the information in the Consumer Energy Atlas was collected from the organizations listed. Some of the information was taken from current secondary sources, mainly from unpublished material, government documents, or publications of limited distribution.

We hope that the Consumer Energy Atlas will lead to better public understanding of the issues and trade-offs surrounding energy as a basic natural resource. Most of all we hope it will encourage citizens to actively participate in the solutions to our energy problems.

INTRODUCTION

The Consumer Energy Atlas was designed with one purpose in mind -- to help consumers find answers to energy-related questions. Where do consumers go for answers to numerous energy related questions? What agencies in addition to the Department of Energy oversee aspects of energy crucial to consumers? What organizations can be contacted for energy information and publications? These and other questions led to the creation of this Atlas.

This Atlas was created to be the most current and most comprehensive single source guide to energy ever produced. (It is current as of June 1, 1980.) Over 10,000 energy-related experts are included. These experts include members of over 50 Federal agencies and departments; over 100 Congressional Committees and Subcommittees; all 50 states and hundreds of non-governmental groups and publications.

The Consumer Energy Atlas is actually four directories in one:

CONSUMER INFORMATION SECTION

- Provides contents for the answers to the most often asked energy-related questions from energy conservation funding to nuclear power.

ALPHABETICAL SECTION

- As easy to use as a commercial telephone directory.
- Lists all personnel with phone numbers.
- Cross indexed to the organization section.

ORGANIZATION SECTION

- Complete office listings; titles, addresses and telephone numbers.

SUBJECT INDEX

- Lists over 250 energy-related categories.
- Cross indexed to the organization section.

To find answers to energy questions the user needs only the NAME and the ORGANIZATION or the SUBJECT. The Consumer Energy Atlas leads consumers through the energy maze. For general instructions turn to page xxi. Table of Contents is on pages ii and iii.

ENERGY CONSERVATION INFORMATION

Almost every state has an Energy Extension Service Program that provides information on conservation and renewable energy resources to small energy consumers such as individuals, small businesses, schools, hospitals, and local governments. These state programs provide small energy users with information and assistance tailored to their local situation. They also help the Department of Energy understand any local barriers to making energy-saving changes. Most state Energy Extension Programs can provide information brochures, workshops and other training in addition to answering telephone inquiries on specific energy questions and information referral.

Most states provide 'audit' forms to guide consumers in finding energy leaks in their homes and publications and workshops to guide them in installing insulation and taking other conservation measures to tighten up their homes for the winter.

For conservation information in your state see the following list of Energy Extension Service offices and State Energy offices.

For additional information consult your electric utility company or fuel oil distributor or nearest local energy office. Most electric utilities will conduct energy audits for their customers' homes for a nominal charge.

FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE FOR UTILITY OR FUEL OIL BILLS

The U.S. Congress has appropriated millions of dollars for an Energy Crisis Assistance Program designed to help low-income families pay high energy bills or to assist them in the event of a severe fuel shortage or cut off of their utility services. In addition to providing an eligible family with a line-of-credit worth up to $400 (the maximum benefit will vary from state to state), the program can provide short term assistance in the form of food, fuel, or clothing or direct cash assistance up to $50.

For information on programs in your state, see your state's Energy Crisis Assistance Program contact listed in the index under Financial Assistance, Energy Bills.

In addition, some energy assistance money is available to Social Security Insurance (SSI) and Aide to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) recipients. Contact your local welfare office for information on whether you qualify.

REGISTERING COMPLAINTS ABOUT UTILITY BILLS AND UTILITY COMPANIES

If you have a question about a utility bill and cannot get a satisfactory answer from your utility company, contact your state public service commission. (Listed in the index by state under State Public Service Commission.)

REGISTERING COMPLAINTS ABOUT GASOLINE AND HEATING OIL SUPPLIES AND PRICES

If you think you are being overcharged for gasoline, contact the Department of Energy toll-free hotline:

800-424-9246
653-3437 (In Washington, D.C.)

If your gasoline dealer is selling his product above the maximum price allowable under law, he will be warned to lower his prices or be issued fines. The gasoline hotline will also make referrals on supply problems to help consumers locate available supplies.

Because the price of heating oil has been decontrolled, the government cannot enforce any pricing authority. However, some complaints may warrant government inquiry and may result in price reductions.

GRANTS FOR LOCAL SMALL-SCALE ENERGY PROJECTS

The Department of Energy grants money to local innovators developing small-scale energy ideas or building the systems that demonstrate the workability of their solutions.

The grants can support the planning or building of projects that conserve non-renewable gas and oil or that use renewable sun, wind, or locally produced fuels (like wood or methane made from animal waste) to meet a local energy need. DOE is already funding projects using solar energy to dry fish byproducts for chicken feed, converting pig waste to methane to heat water for a farm, using a wind generator to power lights for night fishing, and testing wood stoves as backup solar units. A proposal to develop a new (or a revived) concept can be awarded up to $10,000. Up to $50,000 can be awarded for a demonstration project.

Applicants should call the regional Appropriate Technology Program Officer to receive an announcement when DOE is accepting new project proposals. The announcement will describe information needed in a proposal and the relative importance of the criteria that state and regional evaluation teams will use to review proposals.

10 STANDARD FEDERAL REGIONS

INSTRUCTIONS FOR USE

GENERAL

- Telephone area code is 202 unless otherwise indicated.
- Alphabetic and numeric 'range' indicators at the top of each page indicate the first and last entry on that page.
- An (A) following a name indicates that the individual is serving in an 'Acting' capacity. In some instances an individual may appear in both an 'acting' and in a formal capacity in different jobs.
- An (N) following a name indicates that the individual has been nominated but not confirmed for a particular position.
- DOE LOCATOR NUMBER: 252-5000 — If numbers listed for DOE have changed, correct numbers can be obtained by calling the DOE Locator.

EXECUTIVE LISTING - PAGES 1-38

- Lists, alphabetically, all executives listed in the directory and their telephone numbers.
- Reference numbers indicate the individual's location in the organizational listing.
- All state entries are identified by a two letter acronym to the right of each listing.

ORGANIZATIONAL LISTING - PAGES 39-222

- Lists all offices of the energy-related functions in the Executive and Congressional branches in the Federal and State governments based on the organizational structure suggested by the Department/Agency/State. Selected local energy offices are located in the back of each state listing. A listing of National Energy Organizations and Energy Publications follows the government section. All listings include title, name, telephone number and address.
- All entries are numbered sequentially by line to facilitate referencing from the executive listing and subject index.

SUBJECT INDEX - PAGES 222A-251

- Lists selected energy subjects by Department/Agency/Branch of Congress/State/National Energy Organizations/Energy Publications.
- Line number indicates precise location in the organizational listing.

FEDERAL TELECOMMUNICATIONS SYSTEM (FTS)

Washington Metropolitan area numbers in this directory may be called by FTS users outside the Washington Metropolitan Area by dialing the local FTS access code and then the seven digit number listed. There are two exceptions. Replace all Department of Energy 353 prefixes with FTS prefix 233; and all Geological Survey 860 prefixes with FTS prefix 928. To call numbers outside the Washington Metropolitan area, FTS users should consult the 1977 FTS Telephone Users Guide.
