Review
A brother and sister set out for an adventure, and the first stop is at grandma’s house. Not only is she thrilled they stopped by, but decides ice fishing will make a great adventure. Using Inuit terms, she instructs them to dress in layers, gather the necessary equipment, and test the thickness of the ice. The siblings demonstrate respect for their elders by sharing their catch with the older people in the village. Throughout the story readers can see that it is important to grandma to teach the younger children these traditions. Readers will enjoy this book about a fishing expedition. Illustrations are part of the story, though beginning readers may be challenged with some of the text. Libraries wanting to increase the multicultural or multigenerational collections should purchase this title.

Product Description
After showing the kids how to prepare for a fishing trip, Grandma and the kids enjoy a day of jigging in the ice for fish. Grandma shows them every step they need to know to complete a successful fishing trip, from what clothes to wear, to how to drill and clear holes in the ice, and to how to make a traditional Inuit jigging rod.
