

Youth as 'Curators'

www.archive-it.org/k12

Historical Black College Search, Prom Guide, Planet of the Apps, A Day in the Life of a Camarillo Teenager, Social Networking, and many more...!

FEATURED LINK

► Iowa Science Olympiad

<http://www.coe.edu/iowa-science-olympiad>

Science Olympiads is a national competition where students of all ages can test their knowledge of many aspects of science, including biology, physics, and chemistry. This year the Ames Middle School team placed second at state, and the Ames High School team won at state and will be moving on to the National competition in Wisconsin.

FEATURED LINK

► Carly's Blog

<http://moranmustangs.org/carleyr/>

This is a blog that talks about many things. It ranges from sports to historical events. A blog is something where you can write any opinion or thought you have about a topic. It is like an article on a web site or newspaper but in your own words.

FEATURED LINK

► The Oatmeal

<http://www.theoatmeal.com/>

This website covers modern day topics in a humorous way. They create comics out of random or typically ignored topics. Some PVI student favorites include "Ten Reasons it would Rule to Date a Unicorn" and "How Twilight Works". Classic reactions to this website include hysterical laughter, confusion, connection, and instant gratification.