Mike,

Here are prints sent to me by Guy Gillette, along with some general caption info and bio stuff (of which I've made copies). After ya'll make the picks, I'll contact him and get more details on selected images. I'll flush out his bio and write short copy to go with photos. I'll add to that a sidebar on Hoyt Porter's living legacy, Guy and Pipp Gillette, who still live on his Lovelady ranch.

These photos mostly chronicle life in East Texas beginning in the 1950s, with a few up to the last few years. They're divided into two basic categories, and here are some I like, for what's it's worth. The handwritten commentary runs first to last, so you might want to keep the prints in order.

Big Daddy's Ranch/Lovelady

1. Family on porch (C31-23)--I believe this one ran in Steichen's Family of Man book.
2. Watering hole (C88-17)
3. Big Daddy with cigar (C53-23)
4. Arnold's Cafe, Lovelady (no #)
5. Lovelady at sunset (no #)
6. With Big Daddy and his truck (C3-44)
7. Cooking fire (C47-6 or C54-12)
8. Pennies on the track (C55-5)
9. Guy with wife (no #)
10. Guy and Pipp's camp (C8-22)

General East Texas Life

1. Praying (C9-20)
2. Farm woman/preacher's wife (C11-27)
3. Wrecking crew (C7-33)
4. Pledge of Allegiance (C17-42)
5. Dancing skirts (C15-23)

Let me know what you think, and I'll proceed. Guy asked about space rates on running his photos. I assumed the usual rates would apply; please advise.
