

ALA Annual Conference 2014 Training Showcase: 6/30/14 -
 1:30-3:30pm | Mary Ann Venner (maryann.venner@unt.edu)

Lilly Ramin is an Instructional Technologies and Sociology Librarian in Research & Instruction Services. Mary Ann Venner is a librarian and Head of Access Services. Both serve the Public Services Division at UNT Libraries. In addition to training librarians, they both have experience training and mentoring different levels of staff and volunteers. Active learning strategies are a key component of effective training and learning. In addition to training/instruction techniques, Lilly will discuss facilitating targeted projects that serve both the organization and professional development of those involved in making mentoring a success. Mary Ann will discuss how by using creative learning techniques, managers can design training modules that enhance skill development and improve communication for those involved.

Student Assistant Meetings
 Learning Modules
 Quizzes
 Discussion Board

Create an online training course in Blackboard
 Learn to engage employees

Create games to highlight updates and changes in policies and procedures

Create a Basic Training Checklist for procedures and combined desk services

Create opportunities outside of the library to learn about new trends and technology

Create cross-training opportunities to develop skills