

Oklahoma Newspaper Digitization Project

1. Description of the Project

For the National Digital Newspaper Program, the Oklahoma Historical Society will partner with the University of North Texas and the Oklahoma Press Association to digitize approximately 100,000 newspaper pages. The partnership will demonstrate that it holds the digital expertise, staff, advisors, vendors, and resources to effectively accomplish the work plan for this program.

The Oklahoma Historical Society (OHS) has the collections and knowledge of Oklahoma newspapers that, when coupled with The University of North Texas' (UNT) experience in large-scale digital conversion projects, brings the skill to manage a challenging project such as this. OHS, with the cooperation of the Oklahoma Press Association (OPA), will handle the selection process of titles, as well as the scholarly essays. UNT will outsource production of the deliverables, while managing the quality of the product for transfer to the Library of Congress (LC). Through the National Digital Newspaper program, OHS and UNT intend to deliver 100,000 pages of Oklahoma newspapers to the Library of Congress.

Digitization of all deliverables will fully comply with the specifications outlined in the document, The National Digital Newspaper Program (NDNP) Technical Guidelines for Applicants. For each title, the partnership will transmit the following: an up-to-date MARC record from the CONSER database, title-level metadata, and a 500-word essay about the scope, content, history, and significance of the title. For each issue, the partnership will deliver required structural metadata. For each newspaper page, the partnership will send the following deliverables per Library of Congress specifications: two page images in raster formats, a 400dpi grayscale uncompressed TIFF 6.0 and the same image compressed as a JPE20000; a file with OCR text and associated bounding boxes; a PDF image with hidden text; structural metadata; technical metadata. All deliverables will be transferred to Library of Congress in a hierarchical directory structure that will facilitate identification of individual digit assets from the metadata provided. For each digitized microfilm reel, the NDNP program will receive a second generation duplicate silver made from the camera master and technical metadata concerning quality characteristics.

For the project, the Oklahoma Historical Society will serve as the lead institution for the grant, handling overall management of the project. OHS and UNT will each hire a project coordinator to liaison the technical and the history and selection processes. OHS will handle the selection process for titles and provide the second generation microfilm from its camera masters. UNT will adhere to the technical policies and coordinate with the vendors.

Narrative

The Oklahoma Historical Society (OHS), in partnership with the University of North Texas (UNT) and the Oklahoma Press Association (OPA), plan to digitize and make available 100,000 newspaper pages to the National Digital Newspaper Project. The titles selected will reflect the state's political, cultural, and economic history, span Oklahoma regionally and cover the mid-nineteenth to the early twentieth century time period. Combining the large microfilm collection of the OHS and the technical support of UNT, the partners believe that this undertaking will successfully contribute to the public's access to these regionally significant manuscripts.

History and Scope of the Project

Oklahoma: 1860-1922

In 1844 the Cherokees published the first newspaper, The Cherokee Advocate, in the boundaries of present Oklahoma. The slow transition from Indian Territory to the Twin Territories (Oklahoma and Indian) to 1907 single statehood is well represented in the territorial newspapers. This initial project will concentrate on the tremendous growth period between statehood and the 1920s, when Oklahoma oil, banking, and agriculture fueled Oklahoma's economic expansion. The population remained rural until the urban shift during the "Great Depression" era, a fact which underscores the importance of small and intermediate-size town media.

Journalism in Oklahoma

Three newspapers existed in Indian Territory prior to the Civil War, related either to missions or tribal government. Twenty-eight newspapers appeared between the War and 1889, the opening of the Unassigned Lands to non-Indian settlement. As more land opened through the five Land Runs and three Lotteries, a significant number of editors, usually with an agenda, tried their hand at publishing. Many of these newspapers promoted townsites (Boomerism), political parties (Democratic, Republican, and a surprising number of Socialist Party papers), and later quests for the county seats of the impending state.

An astounding number of newspapers per population emerged during this time period, with many short-lived. Nearly eighty African American newspapers have been documented, serving not only the many all-Black towns, but urban populations. Other specialized publications included foreign language papers, catering to enclaves of immigrant settlers, with the Germans as the largest, but including Czechoslovakian and Norwegian. Other groups printing weeklies included labor unions, the Ku Klux Klan, schools, and churches.

After 1907 Oklahoma statehood the journalistic trends mirrored those of the nation. Consolidation and failure led to a significant decline in numbers. By 1926 only fifty-one dailies and 354 weeklies continued to be published. As the rural to urban population shift continued, by 1961 only 276 newspapers continued to be published in the state. The local newspaper not only promoted the town and reported community events, it usually served in a leadership role. In many instances the editor became involved in state politics and carried the concerns of his constituents to the capitol.

Significant events, 1860 -1880

The Five Civilized Tribes prospered in their new surroundings, but the “golden era” found an end when the Civil War erupted in 1861. The story of the Five Tribes also includes an important African American aspect, as both free and enslaved blacks were part of the Indian nations. The war that pitted family against family was bitterly fought in the “Indian Territory,” as the region had become popularly known. Internal dissension within tribes divided them according to individual or factional allegiance to either Union or Confederacy. In 1863 at Honey Springs, near Rentiesville, two armies fought for possession of the region, with Union troops emerging victorious. For the next year and a half, guerilla warfare engulfed the Indian Territory. Finally, when news of Lee’s surrender came to the territory, the Indians put down their arms and returned to their homes. Cherokee General Stand Watie was the last Confederate commander to surrender his sword. Most importantly, the war caused economic devastation and social dislocation that took many decades to overcome, and postwar treaties began depriving the Indian nations of their independence. The federal government punished the Five Tribes for their allegiance to the South. Harsh reconstruction treaties forced all five to surrender their western lands, opening a new era of removals. Tribes from as far away as California and Washington relocated Indian Territory, while reservations in Kansas and Nebraska were vacated to permit whites to occupy precious farm land. By 1890, 67 different tribal groups resided in Oklahoma.

Significant events, 1880 -1890

During this decade the federal government began to strip American Indian groups of their sovereignty. The 1887 passage of the General Allotment Act initiated a long process of dispossessing Indian tribes of communally owned land. The farming, cattle, mining, and railroad industries, all of which were essentially extractive and colonial in nature, developed during this era, setting the stage for urban growth and territorial government. In Indian Territory, free blacks and freed slaves founded independent towns, as did newer African American arrivals from the South.

Cattlemen, railroaders, and soldiers were not the only whites interested in Oklahoma in the post-Civil War era. Led by the charismatic David L. Payne, homeless and penniless people secretly entered and tried to claim land. Known as Boomers, they faced arrest by soldiers and expulsion from the territory. Many regrouped for further invasions in a developing process that lasted through the 1880s. Boomer activities drew national attention to Oklahoma. Merchants and railroad owners, seeking new markets, urged the federal government to negotiate with the Five Tribes to relinquish their claims to the central part of the state, called the Unassigned Lands. Drought-ridden farmers demanded the opening of this part of the public domain. Finally, the Unassigned Lands were opened by land run on Monday, April 22, 1889. In addition to thousands of farm homesteads, settlers created the towns of Guthrie, Oklahoma City, Kingfisher, and Norman. The act of opening the public domain lands to settlement engendered a process that eventually resulted in the creation of Oklahoma Territory, the western half of the present state, by the Oklahoma Organic Act of May 2, 1890.

Significant events, 1890-1900

A series of land openings from 1889 through 1906 brought thousands of non-Indian settlers to western Oklahoma. These new “immigrants,” divided in nativity between the Midwest and the South, broadened the cultural spectrum. Women as well as African Americans participated in the occupation of the public domain, and the latter group formed as many as two dozen all-Black towns in Oklahoma Territory (raising the number in both territories to over fifty). Because the southern part of Oklahoma and Indian Territory became populated by people from the Upland South, the end of the territorial period also saw the institutionalization of Southern regional attitudes, ideas, and practices, such as racism, “Jim Crow” laws, lynching, and farm tenancy. At this time women and African Americans were disfranchised, while at the opposite end of the spectrum, socialism grew, progressive reform movements developed, and Midwesterners, who lived primarily in the northern half of the region, created towns, owned their own farms, and demanded the expansion of the education system. In the center, Midwesterners melded with Southerners, creating what some scholars suspect may be an “Oklahoma identity.” Oklahoma was truly a land of varied aspect at the turn of the century.

In the eastern half of Oklahoma, the Five Tribes dealt with the erosion of tribal sovereignty. The 1867 treaties had set up a process of stripping Indian governments of control of their land and eventually of their control over whites residing within the Indian nations. Congress forced the Five Tribes to accept allotment of land to each member of the tribes. The Dawes Commission registered the Indians, allotted the land, and supervised the conclusion of tribal government. With the bulk of Indian land thus available for white settlement, the population of the former Indian Territory burgeoned.

In 1905 the tribes held their annual intertribal convention in Muskogee and drafted a constitution for a proposed Indian-controlled state of “Sequoyah.” The federal government ignored the proposal and instead initiated a process for a single state of Oklahoma. An Oklahoma Constitutional Convention, held in 1906-1907, created an instrument of government that was signed by President Theodore Roosevelt on November 16, 1907.

After statehood joined the territories, the economy, while still essentially extractive, boomed and periodically contracted under the combined forces of agriculture, oil, industry, and urban growth. Oklahoma’s first legislature immediately instituted “Jim Crow,” laws, with Senate Bill One forcing train stations to segregate. In 1910 the State Capitol moved from Guthrie to Oklahoma City. The women’s suffrage movement had strong supporters and opponents, which garnered attention from the press.

Significant Events 1910-1922

In the decade of World War I, the Socialist party made significant inroads into rural politics, sending a half-dozen of their adherents to the state legislature. Unfortunately, the World War I years were also a time of nativism, with considerable anti-German sentiment directed toward European immigrants, and considerable anti-Asian sentiment also prevailed. A rural-to-urban shift began during the 1920s, but Oklahoma did not become predominantly urban in residence until after World War II. In 1921 one of the nation's worst race riots occurred in Tulsa, destroying nearly thirty-five blocks in the African American section, with the estimated deaths ranging from fifty to three hundred. The petroleum industry continued to boom, with Tulsa claiming to be the "Oil Capital" of the world.

Oklahoma's newspaper collections on microfilm

On May 27, 1893, the Oklahoma Press Association (previously known as the Territorial Press Association) formed the Oklahoma Historical Society (OHS). Founded by newspapermen, the impetus of preserving and collecting newspapers created the idea and support for the society. Within four months OHS accumulated complete sets of nine daily and forty-seven weeklies. From these beginnings, through the 1957 appropriation by the state legislature for microfilming, OHS has assembled and preserved more than 90 percent of known newspapers published in the present state's boundaries. In 2008 OHS held more than forty thousand microfilm rolls, with more than 8,500 pertaining to the target time frame.

Prior cataloguing effort

In 1987 OHS compiled a listing of newspaper titles prior to 1911. In 1988 OHS completed a catalog of newspaper titles between 1911 and 1957. In 1992, after the Oklahoma Newspaper Project was implemented, the employees began to catalogue titles onto the OCLC database. This became the first centralized effort, combining titles from other institutions. By 1997 OHS catalogued 3,138 titles, which covered all seventy-seven counties, on the OCLC database.

Prior preservation microfilming efforts

In 1957 the Oklahoma legislature appropriated funds to microfilm the bound newspaper volumes that the OHS had collected. The program continued on a regular basis, and in 1982 the solons again supported the project by appropriating more funds. In 1992 the National Endowment for the Humanities awarded OHS funds to begin the Oklahoma Newspaper Project. When this occurred OHS had already collected and microfilmed 88 percent of the known Oklahoma newspapers, but set its goal to locate, retrieve, microfilm, and catalogue the other 12 percent. The project filmed 544 new reels, with 328,713 pages of newsprint. Presently OHS has more than forty thousand rolls of microfilm or approximately 32 million pages of microfilm.

Prior digitization effort for newspapers

The partner institution (UNT) has a strong history in digitizing newspapers, dating before they received their NEH Digitization grant. OHS has digitized several rolls of microfilm for internal and external use. The society has also digitized nearly one thousand maps and more than fifty thousand photographs, making these images available through the OHS website.

Methodology and standards

Access to master microfilm, 1860-1922

OHS has the largest and most complete set of microfilm in the state. The project will have access to the society's more than 32 million pages of microfilmed images preserved as negatives in the vault of the new (opened in 2005) state of the art Oklahoma History Center. A comprehensive list of available newspapers for the 1860 to 1922 timeframe is available in Appendix A.

Newspaper title selection

The project will engage an advisory board of eight historians, scholars, librarians, newspapermen, and archivists to review the proposed newspaper titles using the intellectual content selection criteria as outlined by the Library of Congress on their National Digital Newspaper Program website and in the NEH program guidelines. The advisory board will approach its decision-making process by looking at the three main criteria—research value, geographic representation, and temporal coverage—and answering questions within those areas. The intellectual content selection criteria and questions include:

- Research value—
 - Does the newspaper have statewide or regional influence?
 - Is the newspaper a source of information on ethnic, racial, political, economic, religious, or other special audiences or interest groups?
 - Is the newspaper the “paper of record” at the state or county level?
- Geographic representation
 - Does the newspaper provide state coverage?
 - Does the newspaper provide multi-county coverage?
 - Does the newspaper provide county coverage or cover a smaller area?
- Temporal coverage
 - Does the newspaper provide coverage between 1860 and 1922?
 - Does the newspaper extend beyond those dates?
 - Is there a significant gap in temporal coverage?
 - Are there scattered issues, short runs, or continuous coverage over a longer period of time?

When more than one newspaper title meets the above criteria or a majority of it, the advisory board will then consider the following refined selection criteria for a decision:

- Has the newspaper ceased publication and does it lack active ownership, or, in other words, is the newspaper an orphan title?
- Does the newspaper document a significant minority community at the state or regional level?
- Has the newspaper already been digitized in a commercial venture/ (If so, then the newspaper would be excluded from this project.)

Using the research information provided to them, the advisory board will rank their selections using a priority scale. The priority scale features the following ranks:

- Highest priority for digitization—Newspaper meets all intellectual selections criteria and the lack of inclusion of title would constitute a serious gap in the project. Inclusion furthers scholarship
- High priority—Newspaper meets most intellectual criteria. Lack of inclusion of title would be noticed, yet other titles may suffice.
- Medium priority—Newspaper meets some intellectual selection criteria. Lack of inclusion of title may not be noticed because other titles provide similar coverage.
- Low priority—Newspaper meets few intellectual selection criteria. Inclusion of title may fill some gaps, but generally lack of inclusion would not affect scholarship.
- Not recommended—Newspaper does not meet intellectual selection criteria.

With the material provided, the advisory board will review and submit their rankings to the OHS project coordinator, who will then schedule a meeting to discuss the newspaper titles and the reviews in general. With the preliminary reviews as a starting point, this meeting will provide an opportunity for each title to be discussed and for any outstanding questions or issues to be resolved with all present. As a result of discussions with board members, some revisions of rankings may be made. Consequently, after the meeting, the advisory board will submit an endorsement of it review or submit a revised review. The final selections will then be forwarded to the project’s technical staff to begin the technical phase. At this point, the OHS coordinator will be provided with the final list from which the five hundred-word essays may be generated.

General information provided to each advisory board member will include the following:

- Essay on the history of Oklahoma newspapers
- Timeline of major political, economic, cultural history events from after the Civil War to 1922
- Index to the Oklahoma Newspaper Collections that fit in the timeframe
- List of Oklahoma Counties with major towns and cities within
- NEH newspaper title instructions for ranking
- Advisory board roster

Briefs for each newspaper title will be prepared for the advisory board members and will include:

- OCLC bibliographic record, which will include publication information (place of publication, city, and county), years published, frequency of publication, language descriptors, information about previous or subsequent titles. Additional bibliographic records may be included if the run extends outside the years pertinent to this grant.
- Any history on the newspaper itself including information on publishers and/or circulation statistics (Many will be found in Carolyn Thomas Foreman’s Oklahoma Imprints, 1835-1907, A History of Printing in Oklahoma before Statehood [Norman: University of Oklahoma Press, 1936]).
- Fact sheet supplementary to the OCLC record to include the following:
 - Whether the title is an orphan
 - Completeness of microfilm copy
 - Whether the title had an ethnic, religious, political, or professional orientation

- In lieu of an OCLC record, information about a title will be included on this fact sheet and will provide the same information that would be expected in a bibliographic record.
- Brief historic sketch of city or county serviced by the newspaper. These may be simply references to the Encyclopedia of Oklahoma, which includes city and county histories. If an encyclopedia entry is not available the OHS coordinator will compile information for resources at the Oklahoma History Center.

Partner roles

The roles for each partner are fully covered in the workplan and staff sections. The Oklahoma Historical Society will serve as the lead institution for the grant, handling overall management of the project and ensuring that benchmarks are met. UNT will hire a Technical Coordinator to oversee the technical aspects of the grant, coordinate workflow with the digitization vendor and ensure that all technical and quality control milestones are met.

The Oklahoma Historical Society will hire a Project Coordinator to manage the selection process of newspaper titles with the advisory board, create 2N silver negative MF from masters, compile databases on the newspapers, research and write essays on the newspapers chosen, coordinate with UNT, any coordination with the Library of Congress, and research and locate paper newspapers to fill in missing issues.

Collaborative digital conversion projects

The UNT Libraries are the technological partner for this grant, and they have a proven track record in collaboration, and in providing vital information to students, researchers, and the public. UNT is the lead institution in Texas for the National Digital Newspaper Program. The Digital Projects Unit (DPU) at the UNT Libraries hosts and presents online two digital programs: the Portal to Texas History¹ and UNT Libraries' Digital Collections². The Portal to Texas History is a collaborative digital project that includes ninety institutional partners. The UNT Libraries' Digital Collections include digital collections from within the Libraries, such as government documents, music collections, and rare books materials. Materials in both programs comprise 55,925 digital objects representing over a million digital images. See Appendix B for representative work samples.

The Portal to Texas History program addresses the recognized needs of several user groups: students, teachers, researchers and life-long learners wanting improved access to primary source materials held in libraries, museums, historical societies and archives; and institutions needing assistance with digitizing and making digital copies of their collections available online. In 2002, creation of the open source infrastructure for the project proceeded with funding from a competitive Texas Telecommunications Infrastructure Fund grant. Through the technology tools developed by the DPU for the Portal to Texas History, smaller libraries and museums without the digital expertise to create their own online presence have been empowered to add materials from their collections.

Collections on the Portal to Texas History consist of newspapers, maps, books, manuscripts, photographs, posters, artifacts and letters. The site currently hosts materials from ninety collaborative partners, comprising over 40,000 digital objects, representing over 350,000 digital images. Through prior funding, the Portal team has successfully completed many grant-funded projects involving multiple collaborative partners.

Work Plan

Selection of materials

- The Oklahoma Historical Society staff prepares a list of newspaper titles with microfilm suitable for digitization.
- Advisory committee selects titles for digitization based on program criteria.
- The Oklahoma Historical Society provides 500 word essays for each selected title, discussing scope, content and significance of title.
- The Oklahoma Historical Society Library will create a deliverable for each title of an up-to-date MARC record from the CONSER database, fully conformant to current standards for U.S. print newspapers.

Conversion processes

The Oklahoma Historical Society will reproduce second generation (2N) duplicate silver negative copies of microfilm for any titles selected from the camera master microfilm it holds. Second-generation negatives will fulfill the standards specified in the RLG Preservation Microfilming Handbook, 1992.

- Upon receipt of microfilm, UNT will enter tracking data for each reel of film in a database that will track where each reel is in the digitization process.
- Second-generation masters will be shipped to the vendor selected for the digitization deliverables

Digitization. UNT will contract with a vendor to produce deliverables as defined in the workplan. As needed, the Oklahoma Historical Society will research and locate paper newspapers to fill in missing issues. The paper newspapers will be digitized at UNT with a Better Light Super 8K-2 digital scanning back camera, which is capable of scanning 10,000 pixels on the longest side. Newspapers will be scanned as 400 dpi 8-bit grayscale TIFFs as newspaper size permits, but larger sized newspapers will be scanned as 300 dpi 8-bit grayscale TIFFs when 400 dpi is not possible. These TIFF images will be shipped to the vendor via firewire hard drives for processing of derivative images, OCR and metadata, and validation. The vendor will digitize newspaper microfilm to the following specifications:

- Create digital images from a preservation copy of microfilm, a clean second-generation duplicate silver negative.
- Scan to obtain maximum resolution possible between 300-400 dpi, relative to physical dimensions of the original material; 8-bit grayscale; TIFF 6.0 uncompressed.

- Split two-up film so that there is one page image per file.
- De-skew images with a skew of greater than 3 degrees.
- Crop to include visible edge of page, retaining up to ¼ inch beyond edge
- Capture microfilm target frames. These image files will be identified in reel metadata; but will not be used for display.
- Capture additional scanning resolution targets, i.e. 35mm Grayscale Preservation Microfilm Target, (2 images per reel--target will be as specified by LC) at the start of each session, to monitor scan quality. These scan target images will be delivered with microfilm target images and page images and identified in reel metadata.
- Deliver grayscale images to LC that have exactly the same dimensions, spatial resolution, skew, and cropping as the images used for OCR.
- Include headers for all image deliverables (TIFF, JPEG2000, and PDF) that incorporate tagged metadata relating to the creation and rendering of the images, per Appendix B.

Metadata creation

To support the goals of the NDNF program, both structural and technical metadata will be created. The role of structural metadata is to relate pages to title, date, and edition, sequence pages within issue or section; and to identify image and OCR files according to the specifications in Appendix A: Digital Asset Metadata Elements and Appendix C – XML Metadata Templates. Technical metadata will be created to support the functions of a trusted repository as designated in Appendix A: Digital Asset Metadata Elements – Dictionary; Appendix B – File Format Profiles and Specifications; and Appendix C – XML Metadata Templates. Vendor will create structural and technical metadata with the following specifications, except as noted:

- Create a title identifier using the Library of Congress Control Number (LCCN) for that title, normalized to MARC21 standard.
- Produce a unique identifier for each issue using LCCN, Issue Date and Edition Order.
- Produce a unique identifier for each page using LCCN, Issue Date, Edition Order and Record Sequence Number.
- UNT creates additional title-level metadata related to the title run/s digitized and delivered per Appendix A.
- UNT creates issue/edition metadata for all known issue/edition occurrences for issues/editions known to be published but not available as a digital asset, create a record for that issue/edition and use the Issue Present Indicator to indicate the issue/edition the record described is not available.
- UNT creates page metadata for all known page occurrences for pages known to be published but not available as a digital asset, create a record for that page and use the Page Present Indicator to indicate the page the record describes is not available.
- Produce reel metadata objects that describe individual scanned reels and filmed targets.
- Deliver all digital assets in Metadata Encoded Transmission Schema (METS) object structure according to an XML Batch template structure as per Appendix C– XML Metadata Templates.

OCR text conversion

Vendor will create OCR text conversion with the following specifications:

- Deliver one OCR text file per page image.
- Ensure each OCR text file name corresponds to the page image it represents.
- Create text output in UTF-8 character set.
- Ensure no graphic elements are saved with the OCR text.
- Order OCR text column-by-column, in natural reading order.
- Create OCR text file with bounding-box coordinate data at the word level.
- Produce OCR text files that conform to the ALTO XML schema.
- Ensure all page images are accompanied by an ALTO XML file containing all recognized text.
- Provide, if possible, the confidence level data at the page, line, character, and/or word level.
- Provide, if possible, the point size and font data at the character or word level.

Other Derivative Files

Vendor will create other derivative files with the following specifications:

PDF files:

- Create a PDF Image with Hidden Text for each page image.
- Ensure each searchable PDF file name corresponds to the page image it represents.
- Create PDF files that incorporate appropriate XMP metadata per Appendix B – File Format Profiles.
- Create a grayscale page image, downsampled to 150dpi and encoded using a medium JPEG quality setting.
- Ensure PDF contains no bookmarks, links, named destinations, comments, forms, Javascript actions, external cross references, alternate images, embedded thumbnails, annotations, or private data.

JPEG2000 format:

- Create a JPEG2000 image for each page image
- Ensure each JPEG2000 incorporates appropriate XMP metadata per Appendix B- File Format Profiles.
- Ensure JPEG2000 will be 6 decomposition levels, and 25 quality levels.
- Ensure JPEG2000 compression will be 8:1.

Technical Validation of Digital Objects

Using the Digital Viewer and Validator (DVV) software, vendor sends UNT the following deliverables for quality review:

- Validated Master digital page image format = TIFF 6.0 uncompressed.
- Validated OCR text file with bounding-box coordinates = 1 text file per page.
- Validated PDF Image with Hidden Text = 1 PDF per page.

- Validated derivative digital page image format = JPEG2000 (.JP2) using specified compression options.
- Validated metadata using METS in accordance with guidelines in Appendices A and C.
- Note: all four digital files (.TIF, .JP2, .PDF, and OCR) will use the same file identifiers with distinct file extensions.

Upon receipt of validated files, UNT will:

- Enter tracking date on deliverables to monitor workflow
- Revalidate all deliverables to assure quality
- Accept or reject deliverables from vendor
- Ensure metadata exists for required Issue Present Indicators and Page Present Indicators

Data delivery mechanisms

For delivery to LC, UNT will send deliverables organized in a hierarchical directory structure sufficient for identification of the individual digital assets from the metadata provided.

Specifically:

- Ship deliverable to LC via firewire-enabled durable external hard drives.
- Send a single batch per delivery device.
- Deliver digital assets in conformance with the “BagIt” specification
- Deliver digital assets in the precise directory structure specified by LC, and include successive sub-directories on LCCN, reel number, and issue date with edition sequence.
- Deliver data to LC monthly beginning no later than spring of 2010.

After completing digitization of the newspaper microfilm, UNT will label all 2N duplicate silver negative microfilm with barcodes provided by LC, and will ship them via parcel post for deposit with LC.

William D. Welge, CA will serve as liaison with project staff, Oklahoma Historical Society (OHS) administration and the volunteer selection committee appointed by the Oklahoma Press Association. Welge will coordinate with members of the Press Association to discuss and select newspapers that should be included with the project from five geographic locations around the state. He will also communicate to and with project staff and OHS administrators as to the progress of the project. Welge will spend 5% of his time devoted to the project during both years.

Mr. Welge is the director of the Research Division of the Oklahoma Historical Society, a position he has held for nearly 19 years. Welge is also a certified archivist who understands the importance of preserving community history via the newspaper. In 1992, he was project director for the United States Newspaper Project. During the life of the project which was renewed in 1994, several new titles were added to the collection that had not been secured by the Society for preservation. This microfilm project added more than 300,000 pages of community history. His undergraduate degree is in Journalism through the University of Oklahoma and a graduate degree in History from Central State University at Edmond, OK. Welge is the past president of the Oklahoma Conservation Congress, is currently a member of the Society of Southwest Archivists since 1982, and is a charter member of the Academy of Certified Archivists since 1989. In 2003, the University of Oklahoma School of Library and Information Studies hired Welge to provide an archival aspect to the library curriculum teaching archives management and archives preservation classes both at the Norman and Tulsa campuses. Welge has authored two books with a third due out in early 2009 on Oklahoma history as well as numerous articles about aspects of the state's history. He has also reviewed a variety of books for scholarly publications.

Chad Williams will serve as project manager, training and hiring the OHS project coordinator, overseeing any purchases that are required, and serving as a technical consultant. He will spend 10 percent of his time serving in this capacity during both years of the grant.

Mr. Williams is the Deputy Director of the Research Division of the Oklahoma Historical Society. He has been instrumental in the development of the OHS online research catalog which includes a variety of digitized records. Prior to working full time in the Research Division he volunteered for three years and wrote his master's thesis on "Digitization in the Archives of the Oklahoma Historical Society". Mr. Williams OHS career began in the newspaper department where he worked in all aspects of newspaper preservation and public service. In 2001 he served as Manuscript Archivist until being promoted to deputy director. Mr. Williams will provide the project with administrative oversight to efficiently use grant funds and to expedite acquisition of equipment and personnel.

Larry O'Dell will serve as historic consultant, assist the coordinator in selection process of newspapers to present to the advisory board, and write the essays on the chosen newspapers. He will spend 10 percent of his time both years on the grant.

Mr. O'Dell is the Director of Collections for the Research Division of the Oklahoma Historical Society. He has helped provide direction to the ongoing digitization of OHS photographs and maps, which are on the society's website. Prior to working in the research division, he served as Research Associate for the Encyclopedia of Oklahoma, writing more than 220 entries himself. O'Dell began his OHS career as a researcher for the Tulsa Race Riot Commission, contributing a chapter on property loss to the final report. He also held the main curatorial position for a state-wide exhibit on Oklahoma's All-Black Town's, again publishing a historical booklet. He has contributed several articles to publications, including the Encyclopedia of the Great Plains, Chronicles of Oklahoma, and the Oklahoma Almanac. In 2007 he co-authored Inspired to Lead: Governors and First Families of Oklahoma, which won the recognition as a 2007 American Library Association GODORT Notable Document. He is also has published a number of book reviews. He will help define the historic context for the project.

OHS Program Coordinator for the Digital Newspaper Program. The Program Coordinator will be hired to begin work on July 1, 2009. This position will be funded during the two-year grant period, from July 1, 2009 to June 30, 2009. One hundred percent of this individual's time will be devoted to managing the Oklahoma Digital Newspaper Program. The Project Coordinator will manage responsibilities that include: coordinating and managing project workflow, maintaining project records and statistics. This person will also attend the annual program meetings in Washington D.C., produce required semi-annual project reports documenting progress, manage the selection process of newspaper titles with the advisory board, Create 2N silver negative MF from masters, compile databases on the newspapers, coordinate with OPA, and collaborate with existing UNT and OHS staff. The Project Coordinator will take the necessary actions and research and locate paper newspapers to fill in missing issues.

University of North Texas Libraries

Cathy Nelson Hartman will provide oversight and management of the technical aspects of the project, spending fourteen percent of her time during both years of the grant. Hartman will interview and hire the Program Coordinator, and will oversee his or her work. At the beginning of the grant period, she will create an RFP for the vendor open bidding process, specifying all technical details pertaining to the deliverables, and establishing a timeline for completion. Hartman hold extensive experience in managing and administering large grant projects.

Ms. Hartman is Assistant Dean for Digital & Information Technologies at the University of North Texas Libraries and a Fellow of the Texas Center for Digital Knowledge. She actively participates in issues surrounding government information policy and digital preservation standards at both the state and federal levels. Her research and writing interests include issues related to long-term access to electronically-published government publications. Her recent activities include membership in the OCLC/RLG sponsored Preservation Metadata: Implementation Strategies (PREMIS) working group, serving on the American Library Association Council, and appointment to the Texas Records Management Interagency Coordinating Council. She is also a past chair of the Federal Depository Library Council, an advisory body on issues related to government information access policy. Her preservation efforts for electronic government information include establishing the CyberCemetery in partnership with the U.S. Government Printing Office to preserve the Web sites of dead U.S. government agencies. In 2006, the University of North Texas Libraries was invited to become an Affiliate Archives of the National Archives and Records Administration, due to the visionary role UNT played in preserving and providing access to these important resources. Hartman also created a partnership with the Texas Secretary of State's Office to archive back electronic issues of the Texas Register and the Texas Laws and Resolutions, and UNT participated as a Texas Electronic Depository partner site to preserve Texas state government electronic publications. Hartman is the UNT lead for a National Digital Information Infrastructure and Preservation Program (NDIIPP) grant in partnership with the California Digital Library and New York University for research related to the capture of Web-published information and preserving it for the long-term.

Mark Phillips will spend three percent of his time each year of the grant managing overall responsibility workflow and quality assessment of deliverables from the production vendor. Mr. Phillips is Digital Projects Unit Head at the University of North Texas Libraries. He oversees all stages of digitization projects for the UNT Digital Projects Lab, including workflow, standards, conversion, presentation, open source software development, and preservation. He proved instrumental in the creation of a digital object management system which provides preservation and access to digital resources created and collected by the various areas of the UNT Libraries. He presents regularly on the subjects of digitization workflows and system development to support digital library needs. In the DPU, he develops solutions, manages staff, and ensures success of grant funded projects within the Libraries. Currently, he serves as technical lead at UNT for a National Digital Information Infrastructure and Preservation Program (NDIIPP) grant in collaboration with the California Digital Library with Web harvesting for preservation. Phillips further controlled in-house development of software for UNT's role in a statewide Institute of Museum and Library Services grant. As a partner to the Texas Heritage Digitization Initiative's project to create a statewide gateway to digital resources, UNT created a software component for the Library of Texas search interface.

Ann Howington will provide support and training for the Project Coordinator. She is continuing as Project Coordinator, Texas Digital Newspaper Program in the Digital Projects Unit at the University of North Texas Libraries (UNT). She has held this position since September 2007. She will provide some training and guidance to the Program Coordinator, but none of her time will be used as match since her position is paid for from the Texas Digital Newspaper Program. During her time as Project Coordinator she has overseen the multi-faceted workflow of the Texas NDNP at UNT. Some of her accomplishments include preparing a work plan for NDNP, drafting the digitization vendor rfp for NDNP, communicating extensively with microfilm and digitization vendors, evaluating microfilm and quality assessment of digital assets. She has presented numerous times about her work with the Texas Digital Newspaper Program. Prior to her current position she was the Digital Resources Librarian at Sam Houston State University in Huntsville, Texas (2006-2007) where she managed the Library's digital collections which included books, artwork, oral histories, photographs and newspapers. She created a digital projects lab; hiring, training, and supervising students to create digital assets. She planned and initiated a move of the digital collections from Sirsi Hyperion to ContentDM. She created bi-weekly podcasts for the Library and served as webmaster for the Library's website. Prior to that position she worked in UNT's Digital Projects Unit as a student assistant creating digital images and metadata, interned in Visual Resources at both the UNT School of Visual Arts and at the Kimball Art Museum in Fort Worth, Texas.

Program Coordinator for the Oklahoma Digital Newspaper Program. The Program Coordinator will be hired to begin work on July 1, 2009. This position will be funded during the two year grant period, from July 1, 2009 to June 30, 2009. One hundred percent of this position's time will be spent on managing the Oklahoma Digital Newspaper Program. The Project Coordinator will manage responsibilities that include: coordinating and managing project workflow, maintaining project records and statistics. This position will also attend the annual program meetings in Washington D.C., produce required semi-annual project reports documenting progress, assess quality of the deliverables from vendors, and manage overall progress of the project in collaboration with existing UNT and OHS staff. The Project Coordinator will take the necessary actions to locate, scan, and send images to the production vendor for issues needed to fill in for a complete run.

THE FERRIS WHEEL

VOL. 4, NO. 46.

FERRIS, ELLIS COUNTY, TEXAS, SATURDAY, JULY 31, 1897.

Ellis County Fair Exhibit.

Cannot Ellis county get up a creditable exhibit for the Dallas Fair this fall? We believe that it can and that it ought to. As an agricultural county, this took the banner two years in succession and has reaped the benefits in an amazing amount of progress, growth and development. But we surely have not reached the goal of our ambition. This county should have an exhibit this fall at the Fair, and the Argus believes it can be done without seriously hurting anybody or the taking of much valuable time. It would suggest, as a plan, to let each town and community select some good man as solicitor for collection of farm exhibits.

papers, Dallas News, Memphis Appeal and Nashville American and Banner.

M. W. McKnight,
E. F. Owen,
R. K. Rawley,

July 24, 1897. Committee.

These resolutions were passed without a dissenting vote.

A motion was made, seconded and passed that the secretary, John P. Cooper, be instructed to correspond with the centennial management at Nashville relative to securing cheaper rates and longer time.

The meeting adjourned subject to the call of the president.

We Believe Nine-Tenths

Of the public consider choice goods more important than price. That is, they don't want and won't have undesirable goods because they're being sold cheap. The goods must have merit first quality--then the price part counts and this store's goods alone in style, in quality, in make-up and in price, too, just since you can pick for $11.50 any suit in colors in our store, $9.75 get the $13.50 and $12.50 suits; $7.95 for $11 and $10 suits; $6.75 for $8.50 and $7.50 suits. Big line swell new shirts here this week. Straw hats are cheap. Tan shoes are cheap. This July clearing sale is working wonders here. Come see.

Miniature Book Collection

The Miniature Books Collection of the UNT Libraries grew out of a collection of children's books that were donated in the 1930's. It has expanded to include almost 3,000 items. In order for a book to be considered a 'miniature' it can be no taller than 4" (10 mm); our collection includes several items that are smaller than 1/4" (5 mm) and one item less than 1/8" (1 mm.) tall. The Miniature Books Collection contains items as varied a copy of Cicero from 1521, prayer books dating from the mid-1600's and artists' books published this year. It covers a wide variety of subjects in many languages from countries throughout the world. The collection includes limited edition fine press works as well as modern mass-market publications. Our strengths include late 20th century Hungarian miniatures, 19th century children's Sunday school literature, and various publishers such as Somesuch Press, REM Miniatures, Achille St. Onge, Darragh Hunter, and William Pickering.
